

JULY & AUGUST 2021

Each class will be on Wednesday at 11:00 AM.

We are resuming in-person programs with limited capacity. These classes will be held at Walnut Hall at Tanglewood Park: 4061 Clemmons Rd, Clemmons, NC 27012. Upon entering the park, follow signs to Walnut Hall. Admission into Tanglewood Park is free for participants. Tell the gate attendant that you are attending a seminar.

Registration will not be taken on the day of the program and we will not allow walk-ins to attend. Please follow instructions below to register before you arrive. Participants must register on Eventbrite, visit go.ncsu.edu/forsyth-eventbrite for details. If you need assistance, call 336-703-2850.

Registration for each class will open 2 weeks prior to the program date.

July 21 - Growing Pains: The Trouble with Invasive Plants

Sheilah Lombardo, Forsyth County Extension Master GardenerSM Volunteer
Invasive, non-native plants have changed landscapes and threatened native species around the globe. In this program, you will learn more about the issue, including the characteristics shared by invasive plants and specific ways that you, as a gardener, can help combat their continued spread.

August 4 - The Art and Science of Successful Watering

Brad Goodrum and Bill Deck, Forsyth County Extension Master GardenerSM Volunteers
Water is a crucial part of establishing and maintaining healthy plants in any landscape. This presentation will cover the science behind watering your plants, as well as a variety of irrigation principles and practices.
